
FEMST 144

Women and Femmes of Color in Contemporary U.S. Activism

Instructor: Isabella Restrepo
Summer 2017 - Session A

>> Day: MTWR

>> Time: 9:30-10:50am

>> Location: Buchanan 1934

Course Description:

In this course students will examine various forms of activism within a US geopolitical context; we will examine activist movements that respond directly to the continued oppression faced by various communities within the United States. This course will engage with the work of several activist movements, centering the labor and organizing of femmes and women of color. We will also examine the erasure that has historically invisibilized the work of femmes and women of color in important political moments and movements.

